Stages of the Performance Management System

The Performance Management System comprises three key stages (see Annex 01):

1. Planning

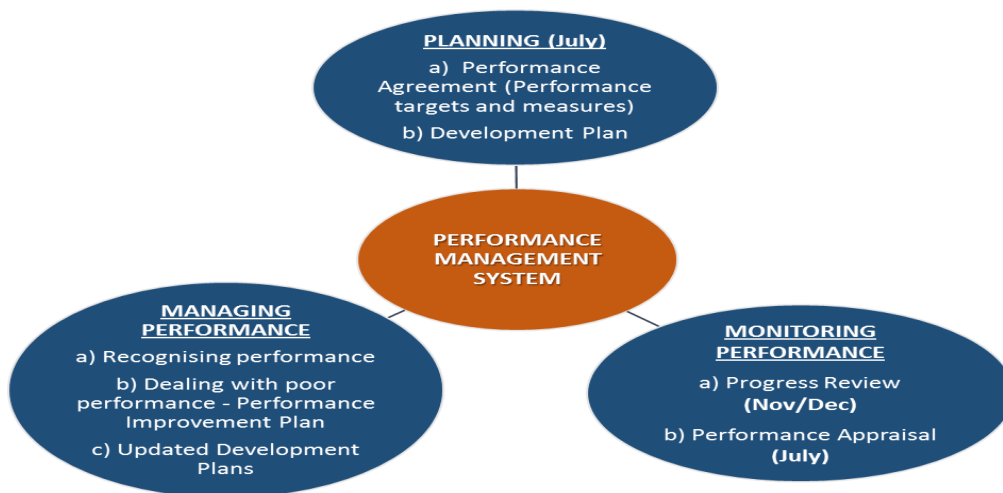

- Employers and employees jointly agree on performance targets and measures, identified as focus areas from KRAs and KPIs for the financial year. Where annual attestation (validation) against professional standards is required, these standards will be the basis of the Performance Agreement.

2. Monitoring Performance

- Progress Review – monitoring, feedback and coaching.
- Performance Appraisal/Evaluation – assessing how the Employee achieves the agreed targets.

3. Managing Performance

- Recognising performance and developing Employees for career progression.
- Addressing poor performance through training, transfer or release.

1. Planning

The annual performance management (PM) cycle starts in May-July each year, with the Employer and Employee setting performance expectations and agreeing on the development needs, within the Employee's job responsibilities, and linked to the Agency/Division's Business Plan output deliverables.

Performance and Development Plan (PDP)

All employees must have a Performance and Development Plan comprising a Performance Agreement (PA) and Development Plan (DP) where the:

- a) Performance Agreement (PA): outlines the performance expectations for the year, agreed between the Employee and their Manager, set by:
 - Reviewing the job's Key Results Areas (KRAs) and Key Performance Indicators (KPIs) and the required competencies outlined in the Job Description (JD)
 - Defining the performance goals/targets and measures for the year in line with the Agency Business Plan deliverables. Goals and targets must be Specific, Measurable, Achievable, Realistic and Timely (SMART) and resourced appropriately.
 - Reaffirming Agency values that the Employee must demonstrate as they do their job.
- b) Development Plan (DP): defines the training and development needs to:
 - Enhance specific skills and knowledge of employees so they can fulfil key requirements of their current job.

- Build skills and knowledge of high performing employees, focused on both their immediate needs in relation to their long term contribution to Agency strategic goals such as: Leadership or professional development and succession planning.

Employees are responsible for developing their own DP in discussion with their Employer. The Plan should be reviewed and revised periodically (at least twice per year) to reflect the changing needs of the employee and/or Agency within the employee performance management cycle.

A copy of the Development Plan should be retained by the Employee, the Manager and be kept on the Employee's file.

Performance Improvement Plans (PIP) will be developed for poor performing employees identified through the appraisal process outlined in the next stage below.

2. Monitoring Performance - Performance Review and Appraisal

Formal performance reviews must be undertaken twice a year: mid-year and at the end of the year.

Informal performance reviews must take place throughout the year. The purpose of this is to monitor progress against agreed performance targets and measures outlined in the Performance Agreement, and to assess the impact of training and development activities undertaken on performance.

Employers and Managers must carry out regular informal meetings with employees to discuss progress, provide coaching and to resolve any problems that may exist.

a) Progress Review

Mid-year progress reviews should formally document:

- Progress to date on performance targets
- Any challenges affecting the achievement of the targets (due to changes in the internal or external operating environment)
- Any modifications or changes that may need to be made to the target
- Any development or coaching support required

b) Annual Performance Appraisal

Employers and/or Managers must formally assess the performance of employees every year. Annual performance appraisals consolidate formal and informal reviews conducted during the year.

This process requires the Employer and Employee to:

- Separately rate the achievement of performance targets (KPIs) with numeric ratings (1-5)
- Separately rate Employee conduct demonstrated with alphabetical ratings (A, B, C)
- Support the ratings with evidence, comments and examples
- Discuss and agree on an overall performance rating (e.g. 3A)
- Discuss any future development (for career progression or performance improvement)

(i) Numeric Performance Ratings to assess KPI achievement

The following numeric ratings scale is used to measure and rate performance. Ratings are based on a numeric criteria between 1- 5 (5 being the highest and 1 the lowest).

5	4	3	2	1
Exceptional Performance	Above average performance	Performance meets expectations	In development or needs improvement	Unsatisfactory, poor performance

(ii) Alphabetical Performance Ratings to assess Conduct

An alphabetical score (A, B, C) reflects how well the job holder adheres to the Public Service and Agency specific values. A rating of A is the highest and C the lowest.

You are a role model and living the values	You demonstrate the values	You do not demonstrate all the values
--	----------------------------	---------------------------------------

3. Managing Performance – Recognition and Performance Improvement

The annual performance appraisal confirms the Employee’s performance and behavioural ratings and enables Employers to recognise consistent exceptional performance or address poor performance.

Below are management actions that should be applied according to the performance ratings

a) Management actions in response to the numeric performance ratings:

Rating	Interpretation	Management Actions
5	Exceptional performance	- Recognition and reward - Leadership/Talent development - Career progression
4	Performance exceeds expectations	- Recognition and reward - Leadership/Talent development
3	Performance meets expectations	- Recognition - Leadership development
2	Performance improvement required	- Performance Improvement Plan
1	Major performance improvement required	- Performance Improvement Plan - Train, Transfer, Terminate

b) Management actions in response to alphabetical performance ratings:

Rating	Interpretation	Management Actions
A	You are a role model and living the values	- Recognition and reward - Leadership/Talent development - Career progression
B	You demonstrate the values	- Recognition
C	You do not demonstrate all the values	- Counselling - Termination

c) Management actions in detail:

Recognition involves acknowledging Employee performance through formal or informal means. For example: Employee of the Month or awards at staff meetings, etc.

Rewards could be in one of the following ways:

- Financial: one off bonus payments, paid time off, or a pay increment; or
- Non-financial: career advancement, leadership/management development, recognition

Employers must ensure rewards adhere to Government fiscal principles and practice. Agencies are also encouraged to develop an internal Performance Recognition and Rewards Policy to recognise and reward excellence or exemplary performance. This should be designed with the intent of building a culture that values high performance.

Performance Improvement Plan (PIP)

A Performance Improvement Plan aims to improve poor performance resulting from a number of factors which may include: low productivity, insufficient knowledge or skills, poor accountability or poor time management. The PIP has two key areas of focus: training or transfer.

a) Training may involve:

- Development to address gaps in performance
- Job rotation or secondment
- Counselling for behavioural issues inconsistent with the Agency or Public Service values
- Regular monitoring, coaching and feedback

b) Transfer involves changing jobs or functions to better suit the Employee’s competencies

The PIP timeframe can be anywhere between one to six months with the following options available at the end of this period:

1. If the Employee shows acceptable performance - No PIP required.
2. If Employee shows improvements but needs more time to embed the changes - PIP extended.
3. If lack of improvement or motivation to improve according to the PIP – Termination.

Head of Agency Performance

Heads of Agencies are assessed according to their overall management and performance of their Agency against Government priorities. As leaders, they are expected to report annually on their success in achieving the goals of their Business Plan linked to the NSDP goals. They are further assessed on the leadership and management of their people and resources and conduct.

Heads of Agencies are expected to sign a Performance Agreement with the Public Service Commissioner.

a) Heads of Agency Performance Agreement

This covers Agency specific goals and commitment and Agency contribution to sector wide initiatives within the following areas:

1. Results – has two critical elements:

b) Head of Agency Personal development goals

Heads of Agencies are encouraged to identify individual development goals for the performance period by considering the knowledge, skills or competencies that they would like to further develop to enable them to achieve the key deliverables outlined in the Performance Agreement.

c) Performance Assessment

Heads of Agencies' performance is assessed according to the Agency's contribution towards, their specific sector and management priorities. The targets within these are rated according to the performance ratings specified below with evidence to support.

Performance ratings

The performance ratings for Heads of Agencies are similar to those used to assess employee performance, however, the management actions are different.
